

The Daily Courant.

Friday, June 5. 1713.

Venice, March 24.

Conferences are daily held and Dispatch given to the military Affairs. Divers States of the Empire have offered Troops to the Emperour, but his Finances are not sufficient for maintaining them. However, it is resolved to sustain the War against France, tho' it should be requisite to act only on the defensive this Campaign. We are told, that His Imperial Majesty, upon the Remonstrances made to him in a Conference of the Difficulties of standing, with the Empire alone, all the Efforts of France and even of Spain, alledged that every thing was to be hoped from Firmness and Patience; that he had been brought up in the School of Adversity, and had given Proof in the most perillous Trials that he did not want those Virtues; that he promised himself the Almighty would raise up new Friends to him, who had never deceived any; that even the Example of the King of Sweden had left it still doubtful at least whether the most apparent Difficulties may not be surmounted by Courage and Constancy; that tho' he alledged that Example, yet there was a great Difference between his and that Prince's Case, who when his Arms were prosperous had his Choice between a glorious Peace and a very hazardous War, whereas he (the Emperour) had no Choice between a just and honourable War and an inglorious destructive Peace; and besides, he and the Empire had much more Strength than ever that Prince had. 'Tis reported, that the superior Clergy of the lower Austria have offered the Emperour to supply him with some Millions. The Empress was to arrive Yesterday at Innspruck: The Emperour has ordered the Favorita to be fitted up, for her and his own Residence together.

Utrecht, June 6. * Count Donhof being returned hither from the Hague has declared to the Plenipotentiaries of France in a Conference at the Lord Bishop of Bristol's House, that the States-General having given intire Satisfaction to the King his Master by the Evacuation of the Country of Gelderland, there remained nothing that ought to hinder the Evacuation of Luxembourg. The French Ministers answered, that they did not doubt that Evacuation would soon be performed: So that 'tis hoped the States Troops will have Possession of that Place by the 9th of this Month. Mean while we hear the other Places have been reciprocally evacuated on the Days appointed. The Ministers of France talk anew of departing from hence, but the Marquis de Monteleone being arrived here from England two Days ago, 'tis thought it may give them a Pretence to make a longer Stay. Almost all the Ministers of the Empire will quit the Congress here this Week; and 'tis said the Earl of Strafford designs to break up Housekeeping here, to reserve only some Apartments of his House, and to set out for the Hague next Week. Letters from Berlin of the 30th give an Account, that the Count de Schoenborn the Emperour's Minister was on his Departure from thence to return to Hambourg. And that he had been obliged to content himself for the present with the Resolution that had been communicated to him on the Part of the King of Prussia, viz. that his Majesty cannot at this time send more than 6000 Men to the Rhine; but that the 3000 which remain to make up his Contingent, shall be so disposed in the Frontier Places, that they may be at hand to joyn the Imperial Army if Need require, and if it may be late to furnish those Places. The Letters from Ratisbon of the 25th past tell us, that there is no Room to doubt the Continuance of the War between the Emperour and Empire and France: That his Imperial Majesty's Commissioner exerted all his Zeal to animate and inflame those whom the Danger and excessive Charge of the War might Discourage, by representing to them that if the Burthen was great, the Necessity of bearing it was greater; that it was better to fall in Arms, than to submit to the insupportable Laws of an Enemy so often vanquished during this War; that after the Emperour and Empire were become destitute of Friends, it would be the more glorious for them both to break the Chains prepared for Germany in the Terms offered to be imposed on it; and that the Probity and Valour for which their Nation is eminent, joyned to the Justice of their Cause, plead so strongly in favour of their Arms, that there was all Reason to promise themselves the Blessing of the Almighty in the Defence of the antient Liberty and Constitution of the Holy Empire.

Hague, June 9. After the French had evacuated Namur, Charleroy, Furnes, and Ypres, in Exchange for Lille, Bethune, Ar, and St. Venant, it was believed they would have evacuated Luxembourg likewise as the Treaty imports; but at present they make a difficulty to do that, pretending that the Contributions which the Province of Luxembourg pays to the Electors of Trier and Palatine should end, that the said Province should be declared neutral, and that the States-General oblige those Princes not to exact any more Contributions from it, though they would have the Countries of Bergues and Juliers continue at the same time to pay them Contributions. 'Tis not known yet what will be the Issue of this Matter. The Plenipotentiaries of France make as if they would leave Utrecht next Monday, but some doubt it still. My Lord Stafford has caused his Household Furniture to be removed hither, and keeps only some Apartments at Utrecht. The Plenipotentiaries of Spain are already entred into Negotiation with those of this State, and 'tis said the Affair of Commerce is as good as settled between them, on the Foot of the Peace of Ryswick: But we hear the Portuguese Ministers meet with Difficulties in their Negotiation with those of Spain, relating to their Barrier. Letters from Francfort tell us, that on the 31st of May the three Colleges of the Diet at Ratisbon, concluded unanimously on continuing the War.
